

Daily Democrat.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY

HARNEY, HUGHES & CO.

OFFICE—

South side Green Street, two doors below the Customhouse.

W. E. HUGHES, State Printer.

FRIDAY, JULY 22, 1864.

NOTICE TO CITY SUBSCRIBERS.

The Daily Democrat delivered by carrier throughout the city will hereafter be at the rate of twenty cents per week.

Important Notice.

Owing to the increased expense of every article used in the printing business, and at advance of twenty-five per cent. on the expense of composition, we are compelled to increase the cost of the Daily Democrat. Hereafter the Daily, by mail, will be one dollar per month, or six dollars for six months, or ten dollars per year—sixty in advance.

CITY NEWS.

POLICE PROCEEDINGS—Thursday, July 21.—Mrs. O'Leary, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct; $200 for six months.

Fred Starlin, drunkenness and disorderly conduct, failed to appear according to his bond; sc. fa. ordered.

Joseph Graham, charged with murder, was continued.

F. R. Garland, drunkenness; fined $5.

Freeman Morton, disorderly conduct; discharged.

Mary Wilson, drunk and disorderly; sent out for two months.

John Kavanaugh, assault on John O'Brien with a shovel; likely to die, skul being broken; condemned.

Margaret Hogan and Fanny Russell, disorderly conduct; discharged.

James Hale, disorderly conduct, and destroying the property of Mrs. Mary Murphy; sent before the Grand Jury.

Several peace warrants were tried and served continued.

M. E. Baldwin, maliciously shooting and wounding Astor Elbert, at Lyon Garden last Sunday afternoon. Bailed in $400 to answer at Circuit Court.

Wm. Krepp and John Kelly, stealing goods, were, etc., from John Cross; Krepp held in $200 to answer at Circuit Court, and Kelly discharged.

A negro boy was sent back to jail charged with arson.

When you want job printing, come to the Democrat Office, see samples and leave your orders.

LOUISVILLE DEMOCRAT JOB OFFICE.—We are now prepared to do all kinds of job printing, plain and in colors, at prices to suit the times and at the shortest notice.

ARREST OF A NEGRO CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.—About 9 o'clock on Wednesday night, the stable in the rear of Mr. C. W. Brown's house, which is situated on Brackinridge street, between Second and Third streets, was discovered to be on fire, but fortunately the flames were extinguished without the assistance of the fire engines. There were certain facts connected with the firing of the building which pointed to Dad, a slave of William McCooklin, as having set fire to the stable. It is said that the negro boy had had a difficulty with a son of Mr. McCooklin, and had made threats to destroy the property of McCooklin, and Wednesday night he attempted to carry his threats into execution. Dad was arrested by officers Wm. Bailey and Allen Kendall. He will have a hearing before Judge Johnston this morning.

MORE OUTRAGEOUS CONDUCT.—Citizens who reside in the upper portion of the city on Broadway, near where there is a Government hospital, have made numerous complaints to us in regard to the conduct of the inmates of that institution. They state to us that the soldiers who are now in the hospital are in the habit of coming out and passing down the street injuring the fences of the houses along that street. These facts have been related to us by a large number of citizens, and if the facts as related are true, the conduct of these men is very bad. It is a case which needs investigation, and we hope that the proper authorities will inquire into the matter, and if the facts, as stated, are true, the parties guilty of such conduct should be arrested and punished.

WE CALL THE ATTENTION OF OUR READERS TO THE ADVERTISEMENT OF THE COLLECTOR OF INTERNAL REVENUE.—If parties fail to pay their revenue tax before the expiration of the time specified, and wait for further notice, they will find that there is now added for every such notice twenty cents; and if they fail to pay within ten days from the date of such special notice, they will have to pay, in addition, ten per cent. on the amount of the tax, besides the costs of warrant, &c. We therefore advise all persons who have not paid to attend to it at once.

INQUIRY NO. 236.—Held July 21st, 1864, at the City Hospital, on the body of John Mitchell, aged 23 years. Verdict—Came to his death at the above named place at about 11:30 o'clock, p.m., July 20th, 1864, from a knife wound in the back, under the left shoulder, inflicted July 16th, 1864, at a house on Market, between Fifth and Sixth streets, by John Cosgrave; and, from the evidence, the jury believe that the stabbing was done in self-defense. J. C. GILL, Coroner.

GRAND PICNIC.—Our readers will see by an advertisement in another part of this paper that there will be a select picnic at Bardstown Junction, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, on Saturday, July 23, 1864. A train will leave the depot, corner of Ninth and Broadway, at precisely half-past seven o'clock. From the list of managers, we can assure all who go that they will have a good time. The train returning will arrive in the city at half-past four o'clock.

OFF THE TRACK.—The freight train No. 5, from Nashville to this city, was thrown off the track near Colesburg, by the moving of a brake. Several of the cars were badly smashed, but, as far as we could learn, no one was hurt. The freight train was here at four o'clock in the morning, but failed to arrive until half-past four in the afternoon.

NARROW ESCAPE.—Yesterday afternoon the sign on Brown's Hotel, opposite the jail, fell to the street with a terrible crash. A little daughter of officer McGuire was passing from the hotel at the time, and barely escaped being killed, as the sign-board, which was over twenty feet long, came within but a few inches of striking her on the head.

STORY OF A YOUNG WOMAN.—Yesterday morning an officer in the army stopped at the Broadway House, opposite the Nashville depot, for the purpose of obtaining his breakfast. While in the dining room, some one stole from him his hat, coat, and carpet-sack, which had been left on the outside of the dining-room. The goods were recovered, but the thief escaped.

BARRACKS ITEMS.—Yesterday was an exceedingly dull day at the barracks. The recruits were but seventeen convalescents from different points, en route for the front, and seven deserters from Indianapolis. The transfers were forty-two convalescents to Nashville and seven to Lexington; five prisoners were sent to Lexington for trial, and three deserters were sent to Nashville in irons to be forwarded to their regiments.

YESTERDAY A PARTY OF SOLDIERS, who were under the influence of liquor, entered a barber shop on Main street, between Eleventh and Twelfth, and without any provocation drew their pistols and commenced firing, but whether the shots were aimed at any one in the house or not our informant was unable to state. This thing of reckless shooting of late has become a matter of too common occurrence among soldiers.

LOUISVILLE DEMOCRAT JOB OFFICE.—We are now prepared to do all kinds of job printing, plain and in colors, at prices to suit the times and at the shortest notice.

When you want job printing, come to the Democrat Office, see samples and leave your orders.

We refer our readers to the correspondence between Horace Greeley, George N. Sanders and others, in our telegraph column.

When you want job printing, come to the Democrat Office, see samples and leave your orders.

GUERRILLAS AT WEST POINT.
Hay Barges Destroyed.

We learn from a gentleman whom we met at Col. Farleigh's headquarters yesterday that the guerrillas in Bullitt and Hardin counties are again becoming very troublesome, and that the lives and property of the citizens are not safe. On Wednesday night a party of guerrillas, under the command of Owen Garrett, formerly of the Tishkush Kentucky, but who deserted that regiment, and a man named Brown, who left this city with Backer at the commencement of the rebellion, paid a visit to the house of E. C. Ewing, of the Twenty-eighth Kentucky, from which place they stole two fine horses and burned other property, after which they set fire to the house. The family of Mr. Ewing arrived in this city yesterday evening and related the above facts to Mr. Ewing, who is on duty here. This city is Mr. Ewing's, who is on duty here. These men stated that they visited the houses of Wm. Vaughn and Richard Moore and carried off whatever they could find of value. These persons reside about four miles from West Point, and have, within a short time, been visited on several occasions by some of the bands of daring guerrillas. After leaving Mr. Ewing's house, the guerrillas went to Newbern and were by and robbed them, but we were unable to learn the names of the persons who suffered the loss.

Our informant states that after this they started for the river, which they reached just below West Point, and a point where there were several boats loaded with hay, belonging to the Government, which were burned. We did not learn the number of boats destroyed, nor the amount of the loss to the Government.

The band which infests the neighborhood of West Point is said to be composed of citizens of Mead, Hardin and Bullitt counties, who have been in the rebel army, but who have returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder, who was engaged in the business of cabin builder and steamboat joiner. He had, however, been in the rebel army, but who has returned to their homes. The force that committed the above outrages didn't number over 40 or 50 men.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 12 o'clock last night the fire bells pealed for the alarm of fire, and our citizens looking in an eastern direction, saw a bright light, which issued from the large planing and jointing mill, situated on Washington, between Hancock and Clay streets. The fire originated in the mill, which was a large frame building, and in a short time it was one sheet of flame. There was considerable finished and partly finished work in the mill, all of which was destroyed. The building belonged to the heirs of Hugh Irvine, and was not worth over $5,000. We do not learn whether the building was insured or not.

The building had lately been rented, and was occupied by a young man named Walder

Daily Democrat.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

Crocodiles' tails are said to be excellent food.

The best vinegar used in France is made from grapevine stalks.

The France announces that Prince Napoleon is preparing a work on the history and writers of the Imperial family.

The Madrid journals declare that the Chinchas will be given up as soon as satisfaction for the Spanish claims is obtained from Peru.

Count de Montalembert has arrived in Paris from Montevideo, on his way to his seat in Nivernais, where he intends to complete his "Histoire des Mains d'Occident."

Henry D'inski, the brave General of the Polish insurgent forces in 1831, of the Hungarian army in 1849 died in London recently full of age and honors.

It is asserted in the Army and Navy Gazette that the sailing vessels in the British navy will never be sent to sea again, there being two hundred and forty steamers in commission, manned by 45,000 men.

The Greenwich Hospital has property of various kinds of the aggregate value of twenty-five millions of dollars, all productive, and yet it is very badly managed, and the income goes into the wrong channels.

The Bank of British North America, doing business in Canada, was recently represented at a meeting of the stockholders in London to be doing an unsatisfactory business, and it was proposed to wind it up.

One of the prime points made at a trial in a Court of Probate in England to prove the incapacity of a testatrix aged seventy-three, was that "when she played whist she revolved and trumped her partner's king."

It is said that we are likely to have another Austrian Emperor in America, in the person of Ludwig Victor, a young brother of Maximilian, who is to marry the eldest daughter and thron-heir of the Emperor of Brazil.

Gouty people may call on a medical gentleman, Dr. Werholt for relief. He advertises in the gazette, which, worn in the stockings in small quantities, will, it is said, relieve his report, remove the tortures which mark the gout.

According to statistical returns just published, the consumption of wine in France is 1,000,000 barrels, of which, the bottled wine amounts to only 10,000 hectolitres. The excise duty paid to the State, and the octroi on entering a town, amount to 197,650. The hectolitre Each hectolitre is about twenty-two imperial gallons.

The consumption of ardent spirits in France is on the increase, a sign that the manufacturing classes are suffering. The best brandy, known in the trade under the name of Cognac, comes from the Charente; the next in repute is Armagnac from the Department of the Gers; next come Marmande and Montpelier. Spirits distilled from wine come chiefly from Languedoc, in the Hérault.

A new boiler for steam engines has been patented by an Irish inventor of the name of Eason. It consists of a number of cast-iron bottles, twelve inches in diameter and six feet in length, set in ovens, and connected in their steam and water spaces. For two of these evolve a power of sixty horses. The advantages claimed are the cheapness of construction, durability, and freedom from the danger of explosion. The inventor is said to have applied his boiler with complete success.

In 1849 the tonnage of Great Britain, exclusive of the colonies, was 3,000,000 tons. In 1852 it was 4,000,000 and steam shipping had increased from 167,000 tons in 1849 to 600,000 tons in 1852. In 1849 there entered and cleared of British shipping 2,700,000 tons, while last year the total was 15,300,000 tons. But this was insignificant compared with the exports, which had risen from a declared value of £59,000,000 in 1847 to £146,000,000 in 1852.

A Liverpool magistrate having had occasion to give an opinion as to a matrimonial difficulty which came up before him, touched it with a needle when he concluded his remarks with the following opinion: "It is always a bad arrangement for married men to have relatives living in the same house, with the exception whether high or low, rich or poor, it was otherwise to have a wife's sister, or a brother, or other relative living in the same house with them."

The assistant whom Blondin was wont to carry on his back across the Niagara was a Milanese, who breaking down in his affairs, resolved to commit suicide. Blondin got him to be his assistant in his perilous task by the following logic: "If we go down, very well; you are to have a safe on the other side, the fortu' of both of us is made." The terriblefeat was accomplished, and the two friends have since been inseparable companions.

Of the four Parisian judges of the Queen's Bench, not one belongs to the established church. Mr Justice Crompton is well known as belonging to the Unitarian denomination. Mr Justice Blackburn was born and bred and still remains a Scotch Presbyterian. Mr Justice Mellor is in like manner associated with the English congregation of dissenters. Mr Justice Shee is an avowed Roman Catholic; so that on Sir Alexander Cockburn alone, himself a Scotch baronet, devolves the duty of representing, as one of the judges, the interests and representation of the Church of England.

The style of the pictures usually exhibited at the Royal Academy is thus humorously sketched by a competent critic:

There may be viewed yearly the Hon. Alpheus Fitz Plantagenet, as he is seen by the partridges upon the 1st of September, resplendent with manliness and knuckeroons. Thither arrive yearly the Masons. Plantagenet, their favorite pony Thomas too, is the Earl (as by his testimony to the family), sitting at his writing-table to compose his pamphlet on the Corn Laws, with open intellectual forehead and highly polished boots. Here young ladies, about whom everything is common-place except their scarlet stockings, trip across the snow towards us smiling as they come. There matrons, fluttering with flounces and lace, hurl large bouquets of flowers down upon us into space. Curates, bland and eleg-ant, a kid glove in one hand, a Bible in the other—summon us to prayers. Bishops bless us gravely in lawn. Ladies at the piano sing to us songs of other days. All, with over-enthusiasm, are bent upon impressing the public with their determination to smile a stranger into good humor. These are the pictures by Simeon R. A. he hangs them up as his trophies, and as proofs that he has spoilt the Egyptians.

A TERRIBLE THREAT.—Two delegates from a large conununity came to ask some favor of King Philip the Second of Spain. The elder, who was to be the spokesman, and who was an ignorant, tiresome old man, was extremely prolix in his address. When he had finished, the king asked the younger who had been as much annoyed as the king had been wearied by his companion's prolixity, replied:

"Yes, sir; our community has charged me to say that if your majesty does not grant our request, my companion will be post all the time that has just said, from beginning to end."

The king was pleased with the wit of the reply, and granted their petition without delay.

Colonel D. McCook died at Steubenville, Ohio, Sunday last, from wounds received while gallantly leading his brigade at Kanesaw Mountain. He was Colonel of the Fifty-second Ohio infantry. The President had promoted him to a Brigadier before he died.

A schoolmarm in England has adopted a novel mode of punishment. If the boys disobey her rules she stands them on their heads and pours cold water into their trowsers legs.

WANTED.

Substitutes Wanted.

THREE OR FOUR MEN TO GO AS SUBSTITUTES who are not fit to draft. Inquire at the court's desk, Democrat office.

—Crocodiles' tails are said to be excellent food.

The best vinegar used in France is made from grapevine stalks.

The France announces that Prince Napoleon is preparing a work on the history and writers of the Imperial family.

The Madrid journals declare that the Chinchas will be given up as soon as satisfaction for the Spanish claims is obtained from Peru.

Count de Montalembert has arrived in Paris from Montevideo, on his way to his seat in Nivernais, where he intends to complete his "Histoire des Mains d'Occident."

Henry D'inski, the brave General of the Polish insurgent forces in 1831, of the Hungarian army in 1849 died in London recently full of age and honors.

It is asserted in the Army and Navy Gazette that the sailing vessels in the British navy will never be sent to sea again, there being two hundred and forty steamers in commission, manned by 45,000 men.

The Greenwich Hospital has property of various kinds of the aggregate value of twenty-five millions of dollars, all productive, and yet it is very badly managed, and the income goes into the wrong channels.

The Bank of British North America, doing business in Canada, was recently represented at a meeting of the stockholders in London to be doing an unsatisfactory business, and it was proposed to wind it up.

One of the prime points made at a trial in a Court of Probate in England to prove the incapacity of a testatrix aged seventy-three, was that "when she played whist she revolved and trumped her partner's king."

It is said that we are likely to have another Austrian Emperor in America, in the person of Ludwig Victor, a young brother of Maximilian, who is to marry the eldest daughter and thron-heir of the Emperor of Brazil.

Gouty people may call on a medical gentleman, Dr. Werholt for relief. He advertises in the gazette, which, worn in the stockings in small quantities, will, it is said, relieve his report, remove the tortures which mark the gout.

According to statistical returns just published, the consumption of wine in France is 1,000,000 barrels, of which, the bottled wine amounts to only 10,000 hectolitres. The excise duty paid to the State, and the octroi on entering a town, amount to 197,650. The hectolitre Each hectolitre is about twenty-two imperial gallons.

The consumption of ardent spirits in France is on the increase, a sign that the manufacturing classes are suffering. The best brandy, known in the trade under the name of Cognac, comes from the Charente; the next in repute is Armagnac from the Department of the Gers; next come Marmande and Montpelier. Spirits distilled from wine come chiefly from Languedoc, in the Hérault.

A new boiler for steam engines has been patented by an Irish inventor of the name of Eason. It consists of a number of cast-iron bottles, twelve inches in diameter and six feet in length, set in ovens, and connected in their steam and water spaces. For two of these evolve a power of sixty horses. The advantages claimed are the cheapness of construction, durability, and freedom from the danger of explosion. The inventor is said to have applied his boiler with complete success.

In 1849 the tonnage of Great Britain, exclusive of the colonies, was 3,000,000 tons. In 1852 it was 4,000,000 and steam shipping had increased from 167,000 tons in 1849 to 600,000 tons in 1852. In 1849 there entered and cleared of British shipping 2,700,000 tons, while last year the total was 15,300,000 tons. But this was insignificant compared with the exports, which had risen from a declared value of £59,000,000 in 1847 to £146,000,000 in 1852.

A Liverpool magistrate having had occasion to give an opinion as to a matrimonial difficulty which came up before him, touched it with a needle when he concluded his remarks with the following opinion: "It is always a bad arrangement for married men to have relatives living in the same house, with the exception whether high or low, rich or poor, it was otherwise to have a wife's sister, or a brother, or other relative living in the same house with them."

The consumption of ardent spirits in France is on the increase, a sign that the manufacturing classes are suffering. The best brandy, known in the trade under the name of Cognac, comes from the Charente; the next in repute is Armagnac from the Department of the Gers; next come Marmande and Montpelier. Spirits distilled from wine come chiefly from Languedoc, in the Hérault.

Good people may call on a medical gentleman, Dr. Werholt for relief. He advertises in the gazette, which, worn in the stockings in small quantities, will, it is said, relieve his report, remove the tortures which mark the gout.

According to statistical returns just published, the consumption of wine in France is 1,000,000 barrels, of which, the bottled wine amounts to only 10,000 hectolitres. The excise duty paid to the State, and the octroi on entering a town, amount to 197,650. The hectolitre Each hectolitre is about twenty-two imperial gallons.

The consumption of ardent spirits in France is on the increase, a sign that the manufacturing classes are suffering. The best brandy, known in the trade under the name of Cognac, comes from the Charente; the next in repute is Armagnac from the Department of the Gers; next come Marmande and Montpelier. Spirits distilled from wine come chiefly from Languedoc, in the Hérault.

A new boiler for steam engines has been patented by an Irish inventor of the name of Eason. It consists of a number of cast-iron bottles, twelve inches in diameter and six feet in length, set in ovens, and connected in their steam and water spaces. For two of these evolve a power of sixty horses. The advantages claimed are the cheapness of construction, durability, and freedom from the danger of explosion. The inventor is said to have applied his boiler with complete success.

In 1849 the tonnage of Great Britain, exclusive of the colonies, was 3,000,000 tons. In 1852 it was 4,000,000 and steam shipping had increased from 167,000 tons in 1849 to 600,000 tons in 1852. In 1849 there entered and cleared of British shipping 2,700,000 tons, while last year the total was 15,300,000 tons. But this was insignificant compared with the exports, which had risen from a declared value of £59,000,000 in 1847 to £146,000,000 in 1852.

A Liverpool magistrate having had occasion to give an opinion as to a matrimonial difficulty which came up before him, touched it with a needle when he concluded his remarks with the following opinion: "It is always a bad arrangement for married men to have relatives living in the same house, with the exception whether high or low, rich or poor, it was otherwise to have a wife's sister, or a brother, or other relative living in the same house with them."

The consumption of ardent spirits in France is on the increase, a sign that the manufacturing classes are suffering. The best brandy, known in the trade under the name of Cognac, comes from the Charente; the next in repute is Armagnac from the Department of the Gers; next come Marmande and Montpelier. Spirits distilled from wine come chiefly from Languedoc, in the Hérault.

Good people may call on a medical gentleman, Dr. Werholt for relief. He advertises in the gazette, which, worn in the stockings in small quantities, will, it is said, relieve his report, remove the tortures which mark the gout.

According to statistical returns just published, the consumption of wine in France is 1,000,000 barrels, of which, the bottled wine amounts to only 10,000 hectolitres. The excise duty paid to the State, and the octroi on entering a town, amount to 197,650. The hectolitre Each hectolitre is about twenty-two imperial gallons.

The consumption of ardent spirits in France is on the increase, a sign that the manufacturing classes are suffering. The best brandy, known in the trade under the name of Cognac, comes from the Charente; the next in repute is Armagnac from the Department of the Gers; next come Marmande and Montpelier. Spirits distilled from wine come chiefly from Languedoc, in the Hérault.

A new boiler for steam engines has been patented by an Irish inventor of the name of Eason. It consists of a number of cast-iron bottles, twelve inches in diameter and six feet in length, set in ovens, and connected in their steam and water spaces. For two of these evolve a power of sixty horses. The advantages claimed are the cheapness of construction, durability, and freedom from the danger of explosion. The inventor is said to have applied his boiler with complete success.

In 1849 the tonnage of Great Britain, exclusive of the colonies, was 3,000,000 tons. In 1852 it was 4,000,000 and steam shipping had increased from 167,000 tons in 1849 to 600,000 tons in 1852. In 1849 there entered and cleared of British shipping 2,700,000 tons, while last year the total was 15,300,000 tons. But this was insignificant compared with the exports, which had risen from a declared value of £59,000,000 in 1847 to £146,000,000 in 1852.

A Liverpool magistrate having had occasion to give an opinion as to a matrimonial difficulty which came up before him, touched it with a needle when he concluded his remarks with the following opinion: "It is always a bad arrangement for married men to have relatives living in the same house, with the exception whether high or low, rich or poor, it was otherwise to have a wife's sister, or a brother, or other relative living in the same house with them."

The consumption of ardent spirits in France is on the increase, a sign that the manufacturing classes are suffering. The best brandy, known in the trade under the name of Cognac, comes from the Charente; the next in repute is Armagnac from the Department of the Gers; next come Marmande and Montpelier. Spirits distilled from wine come chiefly from Languedoc, in the Hérault.

Good people may call on a medical gentleman, Dr. Werholt for relief. He advertises in the gazette, which, worn in the stockings in small quantities, will, it is said, relieve his report, remove the tortures which mark the gout.

According to statistical returns just published, the consumption of wine in France is 1,000,000 barrels, of which, the bottled wine amounts to only 10,000 hectolitres. The excise duty paid to the State, and the octroi on entering a town, amount to 197,650. The hectolitre Each hectolitre is about twenty-two imperial gallons.

The consumption of ardent spirits in France is on the increase, a sign that the manufacturing classes are suffering. The best brandy, known in the trade under the name of Cognac, comes from the Charente; the next in repute is Armagnac from the Department of the Gers; next come Marmande and Montpelier. Spirits distilled from wine come chiefly from Languedoc, in the Hérault.

A new boiler for steam engines has been patented by an Irish inventor of the name of Eason. It consists of a number of cast-iron bottles, twelve inches in diameter and six feet in length, set in ovens, and connected in their steam and water spaces. For two of these evolve a power of sixty horses. The advantages claimed are the cheapness of construction, durability, and freedom from the danger of explosion. The inventor is said to have applied his boiler with complete success.

In 1849 the tonnage of Great Britain, exclusive of the colonies, was 3,000,000 tons. In 1852 it was 4,000,000 and steam shipping had increased from 167,000 tons in 1849 to 600,000 tons in 1852. In 1849 there entered and cleared of British shipping 2,700,000 tons, while last year the total was 15,300,000 tons. But this was insignificant compared with the exports, which had risen from a declared value of £59,000,000 in 1847 to £146,000,000 in 1852.

A Liverpool magistrate having had occasion to give an opinion as to a matrimonial difficulty which came up before him, touched it with a needle when he concluded his remarks with the following opinion: "It is always a bad arrangement for married men to have relatives living in the same house, with the exception whether high or low, rich or poor, it was otherwise to have a wife's sister, or a brother, or other relative living in the same house with them."

The consumption of ardent spirits in France is on the increase, a sign that the manufacturing classes are suffering. The best brandy, known in the trade under the name of Cognac, comes from the Charente; the next in repute is Armagnac from the Department of the Gers; next come Marmande and Montpelier. Spirits distilled from wine come chiefly from Languedoc, in the Hérault.

WANTED.

Substitutes Wanted.

THREE OR FOUR MEN TO GO AS SUBSTITUTES who are not fit to draft. Inquire at the court's desk, Democrat office.

—Crocodiles' tails are said to be excellent food.

The best vinegar used in France is made from grapevine stalks.

The France announces that Prince Napoleon is preparing a work on the history and writers of the Imperial family.

The Madrid journals declare that the Chinchas will be given up as soon as satisfaction for the Spanish claims is obtained from Peru.

Count de Montalembert has arrived in Paris from Montevideo, on his way to his seat in Nivernais, where he intends to complete his "Histoire des Mains d'Occident."

Henry D'inski, the brave General of the Polish insurgent forces in 1831, of the Hungarian army in 1849 died in London recently full of age and honors.

It is asserted in the Army and Navy Gazette that the sailing vessels in the British navy will never be sent to sea again,